BUILDING TRANSFERRED TO BROADWAY NATIONAL

Price Not Stated, but Taxes Paid
Indicate Sum of Approximately $67,500.

CONVEYANCE WINDS UP DEAL

Merger With Main Street Bank Completed When Papers Are Filed
Yesterday in Chancery Court for Record.

Papers filed yesterday in the Chancery Court recorded the transfer of the building at the southwest corner of Fifteenth and Main Streets, until recently occupied by the Main Street Bank, to the Broadway National Bank. The consideration is not stated, but taxes were paid on a transfer price of $67,500.

The conveyance is subject to the lien of a deed of trust executed by the Main Office Building Corporation to M. J. Fulton, trustee, dated September 30, 1911, securing the payment of eighty-five $1,000 bonds. The payment of these bonds was assumed by the Main Street Bank in a conveyance of the property by the Main Office Building Corporation to the Main Street Bank. The Broadway National Bank, which the Main Street Bank was last week merged, now takes over the bond issue and becomes responsible for its payment.

BUILDING'S TRANSFER MAKES DEAL EFFECTIVE

The transfer of the building at Main and Fifteenth Streets carries into effect a deal that was consummated last Thursday, when the Broadway National and Main Street Banks combined their assets and effected a merger. Under the terms of the union the Broadway National secured the bank building at Main and Fifteenth Streets, and the stockholders of the Main Street Bank acquired half of the Broadway National's capital stock.

At a meeting of Main Street Bank stockholders held on June 2, the terms of the merger were approved, and the new institution began business on the following day in the Main Street Bank building. The result of the union, the Main Street Bank went out of existence. The new institution retains the name, Broadway National Bank, and has now combined assets of approximately $100,000.

The stockholders of the new bank will meet next Tuesday to elect a new board of directors. The new board, it is stated, will consist of eighteen members and will be made up of directors who served on the boards of the two banks before the merger, and of representatives from new interests that have figured in the deal, which made the union possible. President H. N. Phillips, of the Broadway National, is stated, will be re-elected to head the new institution.

The General Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities held its last meeting before October in the John Marshall house yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and as one of the first matters of business ordered sent, through the corresponding secretary, a letter of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, at Madrid, Spain. The bride is the daughter of a Vice-president of the association, Ambassador to Spain Joseph E. Willard. After the other routine business had been completed, the reports of committees were received. Mrs. Lightfoot, chairman of the Jamestown committee, the island during May, and the committee on the John Marshall house, also reported a large number of visitors to that historic mansion.

Mrs. T. E. Ellyson is making an effort to procure an appropriation from the North Carolina Bar Association for the John Marshall house, and reported having received an assurance that he would by the next meeting before the body at its next meeting. Mrs. Washburn has also a like assurance from the Bar Association of Ohio.

INTERESTING RELIC ASSOCIATION

The corresponding secretary stated in her report that the association had been the recipient of an interesting relic from the past, a fire back, supposed to have been made at Governor Spotswood's furnace at Germanna. It is now in the John Marshall house.

Touching resolutions on the death of the Rev. William Mendenhall, D. D., were read, and copies were ordered placed upon the minutes, to be sent to the family and to the Southern churchman. There was read a letter from Mrs. W. B. Fitzhugh, giving an account of the safe removal of the old courthouse at Eastville, and general appreciation was expressed.

VEILED PROPHETS BID CITY FAREWELL

Following Trip to Jamestown Island, Many of Visiting Gro-ttoes Leave for Home.

AZAB BAND AWARDED PRIZE

Thousands Gather at Murphy's to Hear Concert by Organization From Fall River.

Surfeted with Richmond hospitality and the kindness of host people, most of the visiting gro-ttoes attendant upon the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, who left their homes last night, after returning from the excursion down the James River to historic Jamestown Island. Zenn Zenn Zenn, of New Jersey, one of the largest and best known, and a few others will leave this morning. The grand officers, who were installed yesterday morning, will also return to their homes this morning. At the Supreme Council session, held at the Hotel Richmond, committee reports received, and a charter was granted to Alhambra Gro-tto, of St. Louis.

While the reported delegates, 236 in number, attended to the business of the convention, 500 of their comrades accepted the courtesy of the city of Richmond and journeyed to Jamestown, where they spent an hour in going over the scenes made historic in the annals of the United States more than 300 years ago. On the way down the river, the visiting bands gave competitive concerts, and a prize, which was won by the Azab Gro-tto, of Fall River, Mass. Competing were Zenn Zenn Zenn, of Jersey City, N. J., and Cash-gro-tto, of Elmira, N. Y. The judges consisted of a committee of ten women, headed by Mrs. Carl J. Foster, wife of the grand monarch, of Sam-El Gro-tto, who presented the trophy at the concert given by the winning band in Murphy's Hotel last night.

The other members of the committee were Mesdames E. C. Pelouze, Albert Bonchen, William D. Dabney, Charles Mason, George E. Dabney, Duncan Walcott, William Walcott, Phil Mason and Frank Bullington.

EXPRESS COMPANY GETS KALIPOLIS GOAT

An unfortunate occurrence of the day lay in the fact that Kallipolis Gro-tto, of Washington, was unable to take back its goat last night. The express company wouldn't ship the goat unless it was crated, and Kallipolis didn't want the mascot placed in a hotel crate. So Prophet Bobbie Walcott, of Sam-El Gro-tto, who is accustomed to goats and loves them, promised to care for Washington's goat and to escort the animal home this morning. Prophet Walcott and the goat left last night to go to the express company having to get up during the night to assuage the goat's loneliness. The excursionists returned to Richmond at 7:45 o'clock, and several of the visiting gro-ttoes returned home on the Old Dominion steamer, and others returned immediately by rail.

Koder Kahn Gro-tto, of Syracuse, N. Y., which won the prize in the competitive drill on Tuesday afternoon, returned over the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad last night shortly after 8 o'clock. The visitors marched, four abreast, to the hotel, where they were met by the band playing "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

A thousand people gathered in Murphy's Hotel last night for the concert given by the Azab Gro-tto Band. People who were unable to gain entrance into the lobby stood on the sidewalk and out into the street to listen. Patriotic airs were played, one after the other, and at special request "When Sam-James, a member of the band, sang "Love's Sweet Song," and sang it so well that the women in the gallery, who were mostly matronly dames, encircled him until he sang and sang. People out in the street called for more, and bell boys neglected their duties to take part in the applause. Then Mr. James sang "The Southern Melody," which is now forgotten, "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground."

RELATED WELCOME

Overcome by his emotions a Richmond attorney, who has seen the place since passed the heyday of youth, mounted the director's stand when the latter stepped down to rest, and he welcomed the Prophets in the name of Virginia, the United States and Kingdom Come. The band men were kind enough to applaud him, and he stepped down, tremendously satisfied with himself and the world at large. The concert was resumed, and the band played until after 10 o'clock. The director was William Allison, and he acquitted himself well.

After the first rendition, Mrs. Roosevelt and her committee presented a silver loving cup won in the concert on the boat, and it was accepted by Grand Monarch Come in true rhetorical style.

The night was one of farewells. The visitors voiced deep appreciation of all the courtesies shown them, and many said that they would like to come again, to see the city and better to become acquainted with its people. In every hotel where the Prophets were quartered there were affecting scenes of parting and a thousand promises to meet again. To-day will see the last of the Prophets, and the city saved the greatest gathering of visitors in Richmond during many years.

"DIPS" GET $130

Traveling Salesman Relieved of Pocket-book, Many Streets Ransacked.

Pocketbooks, many of whom were attracted here by the big convention this week, succeeded in making their last night's robbery. The victim was Charles R. Beck, a traveling salesman, of Elgin, N. Y., who reported that a pocketbook containing $130 had been taken from him on a Main Street car. Two men are believed to have been implicated in the theft.

While the local police have successfully coped with the large crowd of excursionists, and have saved the visitors considerable loss, petty thievery in all parts of the city continues.

Plan Big Excursion

Members of the Monumental and All Saints' Sunday schools are planning to turn out in force for their excursion to Ocean View, which will be run this year on Friday, June 12. The train will leave the Main Street station at 7:25 o'clock in the morning, over the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, arriving at Old Point two hours later. From there the excursionists will be taken by steamer to Ocean View.

Canvass Election Returns. The committee of the Municipal will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in the Hustings Court to canvass the returns from Tuesday's municipal election.

STATE DOCUMENTS ARE BROUGHT BACK

State Librarian Returns With Priceless Records from Lossing Collection.

MANUSCRIPTS NUMBER 117

Include George Washington's Farewell Address Upon Leaving Continental Army.

State Librarian Henry R. McIlwaine, completely in the hands of Virginia taking leave of the military authorities, returned from New York yesterday morning bringing in his possession 117 manuscripts, taken from the Washington, Jefferson, Lafayette, Rochambeau, British sovereigns and Colonial Governors of Virginia. The documents, which were stolen from the State Library in 1865, and were surrendered to the State when identified by Dr. McIlwaine, are valued roughly at $8,000.

The most valuable manuscript in the collection is the original of the address of General George Washington to the army, on June 12, 1783. It is in the shape of a letter addressed to Governor Harrison, of Virginia. Its market value is placed by experts at $1,500.

WASHINGTON'S LETTER TO GOVERNOR BROOKE

Next in actual financial value is the letter from George Washington to Governor Brooke, of Virginia, written in 1796, expressing his determination to endow Liberty Hall Academy, at Fredericktown, and Lee University, with the 100 shares of the James River Company which had been voted to the trustees of the academy by the Virginia legislature. This paper, entirely in the handwriting of Washington, is valued at $1,000.

Approximately the same monetary value and infinitely greater worth to the historian, is the original of the agreement, signed by the Virginia commissioners and Alexander Stephens, the Confederate States commissioner, on April 21, 1862, putting the armed forces of Virginia at the disposal of the Confederacy pending the formal act of secession by the State. While historians have had reason to suspect the existence of such an agreement, it now comes to light for the first time, and is virtually the agreement of Virginia to leave the Union and link her fate with the Confederacy. This document is valued at $1,000.

The collection of this two letters from the Marquis de La Fayette to Governor Jefferson and Governor Nelson, of Revolutionary Virginia, telling of the march of La Fayette's troops in Virginia during the Revolutionary War, are of immense value to the historian, and open up a wealth of new material for Revolutionary military history.

INCLUDE DOCUMENTS SIGNED BY ROYALTY

Included in the 117 manuscripts recovered are sixteen papers signed by George Washington, documents from the English Privy Council, signed by George Anne and King George to the Colonial Governors of Virginia, letters from Count Rochambeau, Edmund Pendleton, Jefferson, and many other famous Revolutionary characters. Dr. McIlwaine has not yet completed his catalogue of the documents recovered. The difficulties in the way of the surrender of the manuscripts, hinted at by the State's attorneys in New York, developed into nothing more. The lossing heirs, on the part of the State, desired to have Dr. McIlwaine identify as State records all the documents claimed by him. Out of the 150 manuscripts held out of the sale of the lossing collection at Dr. McIlwaine's request, 117 were returned to him, and given up gracefully by the lossing heirs. In the presence of the lossing heirs and attorneys, the State Librarian identified the State records, and the lossing heirs, who had drafted the $750 appropriation by the General Assembly to indemnify the lossings for the care of the manuscripts during fifty years, and took possession of the long interest in the collection.

The restoration of the 117 manuscripts ends a two-year fight by Dr. McIlwaine for the recovery of Virginia records of the utmost value to the State. The documents, discovered by him, are now in the State Library, and are listed in the catalogue of the lossing collection, and recovered through his perseverance and determination.

UNABLE TO FIND SITE AT CHARLOTTESVILLE

Found Necessary Again to Change Location of Camp for State Troops.

MANY CITIES PUT IN BID

Present Indications Are That Fredericksburg Will Be Chosen—Delegation Offers Two Big Tracts for Use of Soldiers.

Because it was impossible to secure a suitable site, the Virginia militia campment will not be held near Charlottesville. Several other locations are under consideration, and one will probably be selected this week, in order that arrangements for the movement of the troops and the camp equipment can be made in time for the opening of the camp on or about July 12.

At present there is a strong possibility that Fredericksburg will be chosen by the military authorities, although Winchester, Gordonsville and the State Fair grounds are being considered. The latter place, it is generally conceded, would not be satisfactory, owing to its proximity to the city, and its varied attractions, which would prevent the militiamen from doing their full duty, it is thought.

Fredericksburg is making a strong bid for the honor of entertaining the volunteer forces. A delegation of prominent citizens, among them A. P. Rowe, Henry Warden, C. O'Connor Goodrich and Leonard Williams, Company I, First Infantry, at Fredericksburg, solicited Warren P. Taylor, traffic manager of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, and after a short conference, went with him to Adjutant-General Siler's office, where the situation was talked over with General Siler. Colonel Allen Potts and Colonel Lane Stern.

TWO LARGE TRACTS OFFERED FOR CAMP

Two tracts of level land, each with sixty-five acres, were offered for encampment purposes by Mr. Warden, together with the use of several large wooded tracts. The open fields would be for the infantry camp, the wooded grounds, and the other for recreation grounds. The proposed site is two miles south of Fredericksburg, on Deep Run, and is close to the main line of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac.

There is said to be a bountiful supply of excellent water from wells, while the railroad promises unclogged facilities for handling the troops, in addition to twelve local trains each way, the company will also operate a shuttle service for the militiamen between the camp and the city. The camp would be on the convenient for the troops, but would also be handy for visitors, while the battlefields in the vicinity offer great opportunities for instructive marches and manoeuvres.

In addition to the forty companies of infantry, three batteries of artillery, the signal corps, and the medical corps, there will be a large number of regular army troops, both infantry, artillery and cavalry, with the Virginia militia. The camp, while nominally under the command of Brigadier-General C. C. Vaughan, commander of the First Virginia Brigade, will in reality be under the supervision of Colonel Wilder, of the Fifth United States Cavalry, and commandant of Port Meyer. The regulars will be used as instructors for the militiamen, and will be assigned to the various companies, according to their branch of the service. Unless other arrangements are made, the Virginia troops will carry their own mounts to camp, instead of using those of the regulars, as was done at Gettysburg, and other joint camps.

Colonel Potts, Colonel Stern and Mr. Taylor will leave at noon to-day to inspect the property offered by Mr. Warden. The site is not that occupied by the officer's school of instruction, but lies in an entirely different direction.

Marriage Licenses. Licenses were issued yesterday by the clerk of the Hustings Court to Cabell R. Martin and Helen E. Council, and Lawrence Fleming and Arlene Wilson.

JAIL TERM FOR THEFT OF ARTIFICIAL LIMB

Paul Talbot Gets Four Months
For Stealing Leg From Frank Ridd.

CASE BEGAN THREE YEARS AGO

Story, Not Without Touch of Grim Humor, Unfolded in Hustings Court—Defense Will File Bill of Exceptions.

Paul Talbot, indicted for grand larceny on the charge of stealing an artificial leg from Frank Ridd, was found guilty of petit larceny in the Hustings Court yesterday and sentenced by Judge Richardson to serve four months in jail. The defendant's lawyer moved to set aside the verdict as contrary to the law and evidence, but the motion was overruled. An exception to Judge Richardson's ruling was noted, and time was allowed the defense to file a bill.

Behind this condensed court chronicle lurks a tale which is not without a touch of grim humor. It appears that Frank Ridd ordered an artificial leg from E. M. Peters, an artificial limb manufacturer of this city. When the limb was delivered Ridd found it needed further adjustment, and upon the advice of a friend he sent it to Paul and Silas Talbot, who had attained a neighborhood reputation as repairers of mist artificial limbs.

APPEAL STARTED ABOUT THREE YEARS AGO

The circumstances just recounted, according to the evidence introduced yesterday, took place about three years ago. Ridd told the court yesterday that he paid $5.50 to the Talbot brothers for repair work on the artificial limb, but that the finished product was never returned to him. Silas Talbot died, and Paul Talbot left the city, and their stock in trade and apprenticeship disappeared.

Failing to obtain his property, Ridd almost three years ago swore out a warrant for the arrest of Paul Talbot. That was before the death of Silas, Silas and Paul, it appears, were both one-legged, had both lost the same leg, and looked otherwise so much alike that the police found great difficulty in following Paul's trail. Upon the return of Silas, Paul left the city, returning several months ago to take employment with E. M. Peters at his old vocation—the manufacture and repair of artificial limbs.

INDICTED THIS MONTH

The police now served the three-year-old warrant upon Paul, and the Hustings Court grand jury at the opening of the June term of court indicted him for grand larceny. Paul's case was tried yesterday, and Paul was found guilty of petit larceny and given four months in jail.

According to the defendant he has no knowledge of the whereabouts of the missing limb. Shortly before leaving Richmond, he said, his effects were levied upon for debt, and his whole stock in trade, including even his tools, were sold. It was his belief that the rest of his effects. It is said to have been worth about $75.
